The weather had its blow out on Sunday, and the New York Democracy will have its day.

It is now reported that Mr. Tilden's party enemies, expects he will receive a paralytic stroke almost at any time. Their expectations will not be realized. The Democratic party will be struck long before Samuel loses his good health.

The most fatal hurricane ever known in this country occurred at Marshfield, Mo., on Sunday evening. A great portion of the town was completely destroyed by the wind, and fire, and at least fifty persons killed and upwards of two hundred wounded. In Marshfield all the physicians were killed except two. In other localities in that part of Missouri, great destruction was made of life, and vast damage done to property. Along the James River, aside from the fatalities reported at Marshfield, between forty and fifty persons were killed.

Mr. Alexander H. Stephens makes public the fact that he is heartily opposed to the nomination of Samuel J. Tilden, and that should the Democracy nominate him that he would by no means be elected as against General Grant. He also gives it as his opinion that Grant can carry two or three Southern States. Mr. Stephens, though a Democrat, and ex Vice President of the Southern Confederacy, has great admiration for General Grant, for the reasons that he is a great soldier, and when he had conquered the South by force of arms, he "sawed a magnanimity toward the Southern people which was unprecedented in history."

MR. TILDEN AND THE DEMOCRACY.

To-day the New York Democratic State Convention meets to settle the question, "Who shall be the candidate of the Democratic party for President?" For beyond dispute or cavil, the choice of the New York Democracy will be absolute in determining that question. And for various reasons, among which are, (1) without New York, success is hopeless; and (2) the party dare not oppose the wishes of New York which will be expressed to-day with an emphasis that will admit of no mistake.

The Convention to-day will be merely a ratification meeting. Samuel J. Tilden is its absolute owner and dictator. He intends to be the nominee of his party for President. No one in that party has so clear a comprehension of what that nomination means to him.
He knows far better than his party comrades, that a failure to secure the nomination will consign his name to history as the most gigantic fraud and trickster that ever disgraced a government. No matter what age, and failing health, and party discussions, and availability, and the hundreds of specious excuses which suggest themselves, history will write it, if he fails, that his party knew his pretensions of honesty to be false, knew him to be the father of the cipher dispatches, and of all the degenerating schemes to steal the Presidency, knew him to be a political thief and hypocrite, and did not dare to place his name before the people. It would be a weight of infamy which Mr. Tilden believes can be averted by boldly standing forth again, as the chosen champion and leader of his party. Then it can be said that at least his party believed in and trusted him; it followed his fortunes with high-born courage though disaster was foreordained.
In a certain sense it will be his vindication.
All of his great ability, which fairly amounts to a positive genius, for manipulation and combination will be used without stint to accomplish this object.

And success to him in this is certain; for his party must nominate him, must struggle to elect him, must continue to stultify itself, else all its frenzied shouts of "head" for the past three years, all its blatant howling about "crime against the people," must stand confessed as brazen imposture. If there is the shallowest pretense of belief in its late shibboleth, the Democratic party dare not put Mr. Tilden aside and make the issue on another leader; because to do that would be nothing less than an absolute confession on its part that all it has claimed since 1876 to be honest-and true, is by its own act admitted to be willfully dishonest and false. Do what it will, the Democratic party will be discreditably linked. Its fate and his are indissolubly linked. It is the incarnation of its central idea. The end is already written.

WHO IS NO. 8?

A New York Postoffice Expert Given Some Important Evidence in the Whittaker Case.

WEST POINT, April 19—Superintendent Gayler, of the New York Postoffice, an expert in writing, created a sensation this morning in the case of Cadet Whittaker.
By his testimony. He had been given, several days ago, 257 pieces of paper from the 257 cadets, on which the cadets had written sentences containing the words on the note of warning found in Whittaker's room. Before handing the papers to Gayler last week, the Recorder tore the signature of the cadet from each paper, which were numbered, he himself keeping the signatures. When asked that was the result of his comparison, Gayler testified in substance that he had found no similarity between any of them and the note of warning, except in the case of the paper numbered eight. He had been given several other papers written by the person that wrote the sentence numbered "8," and in each instance, he said, the writing strongly resembled that note of warning. Gayler noted resemblances in the letters "d" and "t" in the word "fixed," the letter "p" in "April," and the "th" following the latter word.
He said the writing of the person designated "No. 8" was the only hand that presented points of resemblance strong enough to warrant an opinion, and he recommended the court to pursue the investigation in the direction of "No. 8." It is not yet announced who is "No. 8."

When Gayler returned from inspecting the list of three papers headed him, he said he was clearly of the opinion that the writing on one of them was written by "No. 8," but not the other two, though there was some resemblance.
No one but the Recorder seems to know "No. 8," and he says the name will not be revealed till further along in the investigation.

Chief Clerk Dickson testified he inspected Whittaker's room four times since last November. Saw no pillow case on his pillow. Never saw other cadets' pillows without a pillow case. Taus witness gave many reasons why he thought Whittaker assaulted himself. He said a letter was found on the floor of Whittaker's room, written to Whittaker's mother, in which he had written, "I was only partly written, and was in two pieces and partly destroyed. It was taken from the room and destroyed. Cadets Cornish, Hodson, and the witness, not thinking it ought to be preserved."

NEW YORK.

The Advance Guard of the Democratic Party at Syracuse—Tilden's Friends Claim the Convention.

SYRACUSE, April 19—The advance guard of the Democratic convention which meets to-morrow is not as large as usual.
It is believed that Tilden called his convention purposely for Tuesday for two reasons. One is that the Tammany society holds its annual election in New York tonight, and many Tammany leaders, John Kelly included, are obliged to remain, and will not arrive here more than an hour or two before the meeting of the convention. Another is to gain a little time, so that this convention may have no effect on the Pennsylvania convention. Still another was the opposition would have less time to work upon his men. The result is that the opposition are hardly represented to-day, and Tilden men are in an overwhelming majority. Tilden unquestionably has a firm majority in the convention. Many Tildenites claim 275 out of 324 delegates. Some 250, probably 235 would be nearer the mark, but there is no doubt of a good majority. The Tilden policy is absurd. There will be no attempt to instruct the delegation for Tilden, and the anti-Tilden men who have been making all their campaign against the proposition to pledge the delegation, thus find themselves fighting the air. The Tilden men will elect, according to all appearances, not less than fifty-four or fifty-six of the seventy delegates. The unit rule will be proposed, and can hardly be resisted by the minority in the face of twenty years' precedent. Thus the delegation will be as solid for Tilden as it every man was under instructions. The Tilden men think the effect of this will be to strengthen him as much as a resolution would do, and yet the minority will have no grievance except the ordinary one of having some of the contesting delegations turned out.

The anti-Tilden minority do talk of bolting, and threaten to hold a separate convention, which would make three in all, but there is good reason to believe that this is mere bluster. The bolting style of the Democrats who went out with Kelly last year, and their present isolation, will not encourage others to follow.

THE CYCLONE.

The Destruction of Marshfield, Missouri—Terrible Loss of Life and Property.

St. Louis, April 20—A. M.—The first dispatch direct from Marshfield was received here late to-night, and given the following description of the storm: This town and county were visited by one of the most destructive cyclones on record last evening. After passing through several miles of country in Christian, Green and Webster counties, destroying everything in its pathway, leveling houses, millars, and timber, it struck this town about 6:30 o'clock. Eye witnesses of the approaching storm say it was a frightful looking black cloud lined with fleecy white, funnel-shaped, and moving in the manner of a screw-propeller. It moved with wonderful velocity, literally destroying and blowing away everything in its path, which was about half a mile wide at this point.
Large-sized trees were twisted off, telegraph wires snapped, and bark literally peeled from small trees. Houses were blown from their foundations, and cattle, hogs, sheep, horses and poultry whirled into the air and carried a great distance.
The noise of the storm, the crash of falling houses, and the cries and screams of the terrified people made a scene of horror that beggars description. What was a beautiful, peaceful, quiet town of eight hundred people twenty-four hours ago is now a waste of desolation. Out of two hundred dwelling houses, not more than twenty are standing, and but few of these remain a reasonable family. In the doorway of a small, low-roofed dwelling stood a tall, well preserved woman. "I am looking for a woman eighty-four years old, who has raised twenty-four children, and is still in vigorous health," was the first query. "I suppose you refer to me," she said, "I am of that age."

She was apparently enjoying the best of health. In all her long life she said she had never been sick but one day. Brought up on a farm and inured to the rough work incident to farm life this woman had reared the extraordinary large family of twenty-four children, twenty of whom are still alive. The oldest is 65, and resides on a cleanly-kept farm a mile or two distant from the homestead. The youngest is thirty, and is engaged in grape culture at Hammondport, New York. The entire family of twenty children, in splendid health, the four who are dead three met their death by accident, while the fourth died of yellow fever in Memphis, two years ago.
The mother still does all the housework, milks four cows daily and takes the produce to market. She is the financier of the family and declares that she needs no lawyers to keep her affairs in order. Every Sabbath finds all quiet about the farm, and every member of the circle is required to attend the quaint old Methodist church morning and evening.

"Is your husband now living?" was asked.
"No, sir, he died five years ago."
"Who is the man then of whom it is reported that he is eighty-one years old and yet cuts two cords of wood every day?"
"Oh," said she, as a smile lit up her face, "that must be my brother Jake.
He's out yonder chopping away for dear life."

The visitor went out, and sure enough a tall, strongly built man, with white lock-streaming over his shoulders, was bending over a wood pile and wielding an ax in a most betoken in order of vigor. His four score years have all been spent within a radius of twenty five miles. He had never been outside of Hunterdon county.

"I care nuthin' 'bout seein' the world, sir. My own little village and day small gathering of true friends is all I desire. I read the papers reg'lar, and I find there is a heap of bickering and strife outside which we avoid in our quiet home. I remember you say you have been and have watched many changes since I was a boy, but all my affections and associations are round here. I never been married, and have laid aside a tolerable nest sum in the Frenchtown bank for old age," and at the words "old age" the sturdy farmer chuckled, as though eighty one years did not bring him into the period of hoary hairs and declining days.

GENERAL GRANT.

The General at His Galena Home—Future Movements.

GALENA, April 19—The special train bearing General Grant and party arrived at this city at 6:30 this evening. A large crowd of citizens was assembled at the depot to receive the distinguished traveler, and a general and informal handshaking was indulged in on the platform, after which the tourists and their companions took carriages for the Grant residence, where supper awaited them. The party consisted of General and Mrs. Grant, Colonel Fred Grant, Miss Kitty Felt, Governor Callum, and General J. A. Mc-Nulta, of Bloomington. General and Mrs.
Grant are both in the best of health, and express no little pleasure at the prospect of rest and quiet in their home in this city.
The General will remain here until the first part of June, when he will take a trip to Colorado.

SELF-GILLOTINED.

BOSTON, April 19—Stephen M. Pillsbury, Jr., a well known and highly respected young man, gillotined himself in Chelsea in an ingenious manner. Either Sunday or yesterday he made an instrument with great precision, but unknown to his father, with whom he lived, of a rough plan, the knife being a carpenter's large broad ax set in a wooden slide, the weight of the lever being balanced by a large watering pot filled with water. He fastened his neck in a collar on the foundation of the instrument, and with his face firmly held over a groove holding a quart of ether, he patiently awaited the loss of the water from the watering pot, which allowed the knife to fall with a heavy weight on the top. Complete decapitation was the result. The preparation must have occupied some weeks. He was 30 years old and unmarried. Insanity is hereditary in the family.

THEN AND NOW.

BALTIMORE, April 19—A number of survivors of the old Sixth Massachusetts Regiment were guests to-day of the several Posts of the Grand Army of the Republic of this city, the occasion being the nineteenth anniversary of the attack upon the regiment while marching through Baltimore for Washington under the first call of President Lincoln for troops in 1861.
Judge George W. Brown, who was Mayor of this city at that time, and who placed himself at the head of the regiment when it was attacked, and remained with it until it reached Camden Station, was among the invited guests. To-morrow the veterans will visit Federal Hill and the scene of the conflict on Pratt street.

BEECHER.

NEW YORK, April 19—Connection was made by telephone from Plymouth church yesterday with Orange, Newark, and Elizabeth, New Jersey, and several points in New York, and Beecher's sermon and the music were both heard. The transmitter was placed in front and below the pulpit.

The farthest point was seventeen miles distant, Orange, New Jersey.

CAPTURED.

OSHKOSH, April 19—News reaches here of the capture of one of the burglars that entered Mrs. Coates' house at Oshkosh and plundered it of $300 worth of jewelry.
Three men were tracked to a farm house at Black Earth, by a Chicago detective, but two escaped. The one captured has been identified by Mrs. Coates.

NENAH, April 19—Detectives have just brought in and turned over to Miss Coates her $300 worth of diamonds she was robbed of on Sunday morning, April 11. They were recovered near Green Bay. They are now after the three burglars, with a good prospect of capturing them.

AT A CHARIVARI.

CORUNNA, Mich., April 19—About 13 o'clock Saturday night John Wellman was shot and instantly killed by Isaac Miller, living two miles east of Corunna. Wellman, with twenty others, went to Tunis Miller's to charivari the daughter and son-in-law of Miller, just returned from their wedding trip. Isaac Miller, brother of the bride, went out of doors, when Wellman attacked him and was shot by Miller. Miller gave himself into custody. An inquest is being held.

A REMARKABLE FAMILY.

The Mother of Twenty-Four Children—A Man Who Has Never Been
From Home.

Correspondence of the Philadelphia Times.
LAMBERTVILLE, N. J., April 4—A ride of an hour over roads not of the best brought a Times representative to the little village of Norton, in this county. Norton contains a remarkable family. In the doorway of a small, low-roofed dwelling

MARRIAGE IN EGYPT.

Girls Sometimes Betrothed at the Age of 5 Years and Married at 10—The Price of a Wife from 5 Shillings to $1,500.

When an Egyptian wants a wife he is not allowed to visit the harems of friends to select one, for Mohammed forbade men to see the face of any woman they could marry—that is to say, any besides their mothers or sisters. A man is, therefore, obliged to employ a "khatbeh," or matchmaker, to find one for him, for which service, of course, she expects "backsheesh"— that is, payment. The khatbeh, having found a girl, recommends her to the man as exceedingly beautiful and eminently suitable to him. The father is then walled upon to ascertain the dowry he requires, for all wives are purchased as they were in patriarchal days.
When Jacob had no money to pay for Rachel, he served her father for seven years as an equivalent; and when duped was obliged to serve a second time to secure his prize. (Gen. xxix.) Fathers still refuse to give a younger daughter in marriage before an elder sister has been married. The people of Armenia, in Asiatic Turkey, forbid a younger son to marry before an elder, and this is likewise the law of the Hindoos.

The price of a wife varies from 5 shillings to $1,500. The girl may not be more than 6 or 7 years old, but, whatever her age, two-thirds of the dowry is at once paid to her father in the presence of witnesses. The father then, or his representative, says: "Betrothed thou, my daughter," and the young man responds, "I accept of this betrothal." Unless among the lower classes, the father expends the dower in the purchase of dress, ornaments or furniture for the bride, which never becomes the property of her husband.
Even when betrothed, the intercourse of the parties is very restricted. The Arabs will not allow their women to see each other, but the Jews are not quite so stringent.
The betrothals often continue for years before the man demands his wife. Thus, "Samson went down and talked to the woman," or espoused her, and "after a time he returned to take her." Girls are demanded at the age of 10 and between that and 16 years, but after 16 few men will seek them, and the dowry expected is then proportionally low.

Girls of Egypt are often mothers at 13 and grandmothers at 26, and in Persia they are said to be mothers at 11, and grandmothers at 24 and past child bearing at 30.
When a man demands his betrothed a day is fixed for the nuptials, and for seven nights before he is expected to give a feast, which however, is furnished by the guests themselves. Thus, one sends coffee, another rice, another sugar, etc. The principle time of this continued feast is the night before the consummation. The conduct is entrusted to the "friend of the bridegroom" (John, iii. 29.) About the middle of this day the bride arrives at the house and retires to the harem, where she sits with her mother, sisters, and female friends. At the third or fourth watch of the night—three or four hours after sunset the bridegroom, who has not yet seen his fair one, goes to the mosque to pray, accompanied by "mehals," or torches and lanterns, with music. Upon his return he is introduced to his bride, with whom, having given her attendant a present to retire, he is left alone. He then throws off her veil and for the first time sees her face. If satisfied, he demands the women attend, who immediately express their joy by screaming "zaggaret," which is echoed by the women in the house, and then by those in the neighborhood.

An Old Man Restored to Health.
BATAVIA, N. Y., Sept. 15, 1879.
H. H. WARREN & CO., ROCHESTER, N. Y.
—GENTLEMEN:—For forty years I have suffered with Diabetes, being obliged to void urine as often as once in thirty minutes, and have also been a great sufferer from palpitation of the heart. I am now using your Diabetes Cure, and can truly say, at 70 years of age, that it makes me feel like a new man."

PETER SHOWERMAN.
MILWAUKEE GRAIN REPORT.
Special Correspondence Janesville Gazette.
MILWAUKEE, April 19—9 a. m.
Dear Sir:—The market during the past week has not been very active, and attended with wide fluctuations and much excitement.
The farmer tone noted in our last was well maintained during the early part of the week, No. 2 for May delivery selling up to $1.13 3/4 on Tuesday, since when the bear element have assumed complete control, and a material decline has taken place, closing about 3 cents on cash wheat and 4 1/2 cents on futures lower than on the 10th inst.
The demand, notwithstanding the decline, has been mainly confined to local milling, and our stocks have decreased only about 100,000 bushels during the week. The outward movement from seaboard points shows a material increase, of about 100,000 bushels for the week being only 1,500,000 bushels. Legitimate trade appears, for the time being, paralyzed, the almost unprecedented sales for future delivery both here and at Chicago, a large percentage of which have been taken by the agents of the New York clique, have been a surprise to many of the boldest bears, and with nearly all of the present stocks owned by the syndicate, it may well be a matter of conjecture as to where the shorts are to get the wheat with which to fill their outstanding contracts.

Within a day or two the bears have been materially aided in their efforts to depress prices by the failure of some Eastern holders and consequent forced sales. Thus far the tide has been running in their favor with an almost irresistible current, but it is believed by many that should the present outlook for the next crop change to less favorable indications or anything unforeseen occur to cause a turn in the tide, and a scare among the shorts, that prices would be advanced very materially.

Receipts here again show a slight decline, the average for the week being 9,000 bushels against 10,000 for the same week in 1879, the same week last year, and 96,000 for the same week in 1878.

The total receipts at spring wheat points for the week were 161,000 bushels, as against 170,534 bushels the previous week, 319,000 bushels the same week last year, and 915,000 for the same week in 1878. The amount of wheat in sight in this country reported up to the 10th instant, was 23,895,000 bushels, showing a decrease since previous report of 545,000 bushels, though still leaving the "visible supply" larger by 5,000, 000 bushels than at a corresponding date, in 1879.

The amount of wheat on passage for the United Kingdom and Continent, reported up to the 10th instant, was 21,730,000 bushels, showing an increase since last report of 980,000 bushels, and larger by about 5,000,000 bushels than at the same date last year. The total amount in sight in this country, and on passage for Foreign ports, aggregating 45,558,000 bushels, as against 41,153,000 bushels, at date of previous report.

Foreign markets have ruled weak with a declined tendency to lower prices, closing for the week 3d to 4d per cent on spot wheat, and 2d 6d to 3d 6d per cent on cargoes lower than one week ago. Quotations show a larger margin against shipments than at date of our last, No. 2 to arrive being quoted at $1.35, and the present cost to lay down in Liverpool is $1.47 per bushel.
Yours truly,
CHANDLER, BROWN & CO.

OHIOAGO LETTER.
Correspondence of the Gazette.
CHICAGO, April 19th--The climate of Chicago is very hard on all but robust constitutions, during the spring months. A change from heat to extreme cold very often occurs in a few hours. Catarrh is one of the most prevalent diseases to which we are subjected. The thousand and one remedies devised and advertised by quacks and others, prove worthless as cures, or in any manner to lessen its virulence. In fact many so called catarrh cures, only augment and make worse, instead of helping or curing. A change of climate seems to be the only effective way to get rid of it. General Sheridan informed me that just previous to his starting for Mexico with General Grant, he had a very severe attack of this disagreeable malady, but on leaving Chicago for other clime, it very soon disappeared. Since his return however, he is slightly troubled with it again, and only on the advent of permanent warm weather will it be removed from thousands upon thousands in our midst, until the changeable weather of fall, winter and spring, when it will be just as bad as ever.
Building operations are at a stand still, to a certain extent, owing to the high price of materials. Old brick is still quoted at $10 and $12 per thousand, while contracts are being made for June delivery at $6.50 and $7. Prices of lumber have slightly fallen off, with strong tendencies of a still further decline in the near future. Large stocks of lumber on hand at all of the yards, and many cargo's arriving daily. Navigation has been fully open for over three weeks, and as logging in the Northern pluries has been most excellent the lumber will be received in Chicago the present summer and fall than any previous season. Lumber and nails are on the decline likewise, and still lower figures anticipated are long. Dealers say that nails will go to $400 rates, and will stop there.
Salaries' wages are $300 per day, and men scarce. The number of vessels of all kinds in connection with the port of Chicago, at the present time is 375, with an aggregate tonnage of 71,321. Included in the above are 113 steamers, and 265 sailing vessels of all sizes; 16 of these are small steamers, each under 20 tons burden. There are six small sailing vessels, averaging 11 tons each. The large steamer, the Chicago and Commodore. A large number of both sailing vessels and steamers will be added to the above number during the present season. A very busy summer and fall is looked for in marine matters.
Immense quantities of wheat and other grains is on the move to the seaboard. Wheat may be lower next June than at present, but it is altogether too early to make any predictions. A careful inquiry amongst farmers reveals the fact that winter wheat looks excellent at present all over the State.
Large numbers of emigrants are constantly going through this city on their way to the west. Almost every nationality is included, from the down-East Yankee to the dusky African; from the swarthy Spaniard to the Mexican. Occasionally, a few Chinese are observed in the crowds at the depots, with their pigtail and frying pan, but generally those who arrive in this city remain here. Bohemians and Germans seem to be in the majority; but very few Irish are observed, while Danes and Norwegians are numerous. The most look strong and healthy, the children look well. We noticed one very large couple with three pair of twins, from three to nine years old. In charge of the old lady and her sister were triplets, two months old. They were from Ireland and bound for Minnesota. The weight of this interesting family combined was 1095 pounds.
